

2008 INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP ON POLLUTION PREVENTION AND SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

“ENHANCING MISSION THROUGH PROACTIVE ENVIRONMENTAL RISK MITIGATION”

November 18-20, 2008 • San Diego, California

Mark Your Calendars!

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) is holding an International Workshop on Pollution Prevention and Sustainable Development on November 18-20, 2008 at the University of California San Diego. An exciting program is being planned that will include presentations and informal discussions on the issues, progress, and technological solutions (from R&D to commercial) related to pollution prevention and sustainable development. Of particular interest will be technologies applicable to military and aerospace operations, including:

Pollution Prevention

- Cleaning
- Coatings and pretreatment
- Depainting
- Electronics manufacturing and repair
- Solvent reduction/recovery

Sustainable Technologies

- Renewable energy (especially wind and solar)
- Hydrogen and fuel cells
- Bio-based products
- Green buildings

... and more !

Do not miss this opportunity to hear distinguished guest speakers and workshop leaders present a wealth of information and ideas relevant to U.S. and European engineers and scientists interested in solving their pollution prevention and sustainability problems.

Who should attend?

This workshop will be geared toward materials and process engineers from the United States, Europe, and elsewhere affiliated with government agencies as well as large and small businesses.

Workshop information and registration

The workshop will take place at the University of California – San Diego. Online registration and other information can be found at the mail workshop web page, <http://www.teerm.nasa.gov/workshop.html>.
